THE SNAPSHOT

Vol. VI No. 5 Milwaukee-Downer College Oct. 22, 1948

RALLY 'ROUND YOUR PARTY

Everyone likes parades and excitement, and you'll find both at MDC next week. Oct. 25-29 is campaign week for the mock election. Banners will wave, and enthusiastic supporters of each party will try to win your vote.

Although the week will be filled with stunts and good times, the purpose of the rally on Thursday will be to give you an idea of the true qualities of the candidates.

Dorothy Hauck will try to win your vote for the Republicans, while Jane Van Houten will fight for the Democrats. Also campaigning are Mary Schultz, for the Progressive group, Delores Taylor, for the Socialist party, and Ruth Johnson, offering support to the Communists.

The final election will climax the week's campaign on Friday, October 29. Join the crowd and spur your favorite to the presidency.

GHOST TIME

Witches, black cats, jack-'o-lanterns, parties, "tricks or treats", and fun! Does this bring back memories of good times? Do you wish you could have more? Then AA members, the Halloween party planned for you on Oct. 25 is the place to go. All the old times will be brought back in full force.

You can bob for apples, have your fortune told, tell ghost stories, and take a tour through the spook house where all the Halloween goblins dwell. We guarantee your hair will stand on end! And besides all the other attractions, refreshments will be served too!

Sorry, but this super Halloween fun is for AA members only. The party will be over in time for everyone to do her homework, so don't miss the thrills that only Halloween and AA can bring you.

A FRIEND OF MDC

Passing through the doors of Chapman Memorial Library each day, how many of us pause for a minute to think of the woman whose name it bears?

Alice Greenwood Chapman was born in Boston, but grew up in Milwaukee where she attended Milwaukee Female College. All her life she was interested in art, education, and welfare work.

An ardent lover of music she was an accomplished musician herself and also composed. She aided in bringing to Milwaukee the concerts of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

She also collected paintings and was a patron of the Layton Art Gallery and the Milwaukee Art Institute. In addition, she assisted the Visiting Nurse Association, the Children's Hospital, the YWCA, and many other civic organizations.

In 1906 Miss Chapman became a member of the board of trustees. She not only aided the College herself, but during her extensive travels, she also interested many other people in MDC. She increased the endowment with many gifts.

Our library, with its stately and dignified beauty is a truly fitting memorial to Alice Chapman.

OH, THE DORM LIFE FOR ME!

There are certain advantages of dorm life over city life which must be quite obvious to all and sundry, such as 12:30 curfew on weekends, rising bell at 6:45 whether you intend to rise or not, and the way people drop in, one after another, when you're buried deep in Shakespeare or chemistry.

Eddy Durand likes the way you can get assignments from your pals if you should go to sleep in class or miss one entirely. Sally Bartlett appreciates the fact that there's never a dull moment around Holton, with which everyone will agree.

Living above Stu Parlor delights Jean Cotter, because it's always so nice and quiet. Barb Paulus, a transfer student, enjoys the noisy rooms and lights out at 10:30. She also enjoys the view from her window---a tree. Caroline Grether is also fond of her room which she calls Grand Central Station.

Part of the fun in McLaren is hearing people chasing mice upstairs at 3 o'clock in the morning says Chloe Millin, while Jessie Farquhar likes the bells ringing at all hours---alarm clocks at 5 a.m. and fire bells at midnight.

Joan Spencer says that the best part of dorm life is the sociability of living with other girls, and to prove this Chris Murdock tells us that the thing she likes most about Johnston is Juny Michalski (and vice versa.) To add a sidelight, Lois Wiker would like to be a dorm girl and not have to catch streetcars all the time.

Any girl in the dorms will tell you that:

The thing that we like best of all is hearing our name at daily mail-call.

Any way you look at it, it's more fun to live in a dorm---says a dorm student!

The editors would like to know what you city students would say in reply!

BLURS AND BLOTS

Have you ever ventured near the muffled metal machine in the publicity office? Perhaps you have found several well-soiled pairs of work gloves nestling quietly beside it. No, these are not used by our energetic publicity agent for "digging up the news," but rather belong to the much talked about, often berated CGA mimeograph machine.

You see, this is a very special machine, for it must be handled with kid gloves--or a reasonable facsimile! In part, its temperamental nature may be well understood, for it is extremely overworked in certain seasons, while in other months it is completely neglected. While typewriters click noisily near by, the mimeograph roller waits patiently for the hand to turn it.

But before a Hat Banquet you may find Sid Stoker, Peg Peil, Jane Van Houten, and other representatives of each class busily running off songs for the gala occasion.

Groans echo loudly as it feeds a whole stack of papers at a time, or jumps the margin.

A few weeks ago Jan Mathews was seen, well-gloved, mimeographing ultimatums from the president of AA urging everyone to enlist. Mountebanks president, Pat Holm finds the machine an invaluable aid in printing fliers to announce coming dramatic events.

If you ever mention this machine to Mac Barnes, you will notice a different reaction. She will sigh dreamily. You see, one day, when ordering new supplies for it, she met an eligible young man, and she's never forgotten it---or him!

ENGAGEMENTS

Pat Pollock to Dave Hoffman
Josie Wright to Bob Ellefson

*****

Hold your breath and count to ten if you were one of the freshmen told to learn the names of the statues in front of chapel, or else! None of the sophs knew them either.

DRAMA IN THE WASTEBASKET!

Sue Carroll and Gloria Groleski had an unexpected visitor last week in the form of a small gray mouse. He made his appearance in the middle of the night and spent the next few hours in the wastebasket.

The next morning Mike Morgan played hero, and got rid of the animal.

This reminds us of another hero, Jane Rumpf, who once outwitted an extremely willful squirrel in the publicity office. After a wild chase, she finally got him with a wastebasket!
